I Can Calm Down

Copyright © PreKinders.com

Sometimes, I get really angry when things happen that I don't like. It could be when someone breaks my toys, skips me in line, refuses to be my friend, or takes something away from me.

When I get angry, my friends might feel nervous because they don't know how I'll react. But I'm learning some special tools to help me calm down and feel happy again. Let me tell you about all about them!

Counting: One, Two, Three... Calm!

When I feel angry, I like to count to calm down. Take a deep breath and slowly count to ten. With each number, imagine your anger going away. It's like a magic spell that makes you feel better!

Breathe In, Breathe Out

Taking big breaths can help us feel calm. Close your eyes and imagine a balloon in your tummy. Take a deep breath in, and let your balloon fill up with air. Now, blow the air out slowly, and imagine your balloon shrink. Feel how peaceful you become with each breath!

Talking with Our Teacher

Sometimes, it helps to talk about our feelings. Our teachers are here to listen and help us. When we're angry, we can find our teacher and tell them how we feel. They will give us hugs and help us figure out what to do.

Thinking Happy Thoughts

When anger makes us feel yucky, we can think of nice things to make us feel better. Imagine fluffy clouds, colorful rainbows, or funny animal friends. Picture yourself in your favorite place, doing something you love. Happy thoughts bring back our smiles!

Coloring Fun

Coloring is a super fun way to calm down when we're mad. Grab your crayons or markers and start coloring. Pick your favorite colors and make beautiful pictures. As we focus on coloring, our anger fades away, and we feel peaceful and happy.

Magical Music

Did you know that music can make our anger disappear? Listen to your favorite songs or sing along to happy tunes. The music helps us feel relaxed and joyful. Dance and let the music bring back your giggles and laughter!

When anger tries to take over, we have special tools to make it go away. By using these special tools, we can find our happy place again. Remember, it's okay to feel angry sometimes, but we can always choose to be happy!
